

New York, NY

Upcoming Experiences
For Private Groups
For Companies

Discover a Jazzfest and Fishfry at a Brooklyn Brownstone

Enjoy back-in-the-day “no amp” salon jazz in a historic home with a take-off-your-shoes vibe and

Overview

Map

- Debbie McClain owns a Bedford-Stuyvesant bed-and-breakfast
- Retreat to a time gone by with an evening of intimate music in an elegant 19th-century brownstone
- Enjoy live performances under the direction of bassist Eric Lemon, and exclusive early access to meet the musicians
- Snack on an authentic fishfry during the intermission

In the 1940's, one didn't head to Manhattan for the real jazz scene. Instead, those in the know went to Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant neighborhood. At that time, the neighborhood held about 20 clubs that housed greats like Miles Davis, Max Roach and Hank Mobley. But as the area changed before the 80's, the jazz clubs fizzled out in favor of a different generation.

Debbie McClain, owner of the Sankofa Aban bed-and-breakfast, is looking to revive the local salon scene of the 19th century with a weekend night jazz session, along with her jazz-partner string musician Eric Lemon. Both of them value authenticity and selectiveness when deciding who to allow into the room and what to serve up in sound, so you won't hear any amps or be presented with anything but the best here. This is a weekend night in the neighborhood: intimate, classic, acoustic and delicious. Plain and simple.

Step into another era for a magical evening of music when

☒ May
Fri -

☐ May
Sat -

▼

LOCATION
Brooklyn

🔔 Notif

EXPERIENCE

140
TIMES HE

1767
TOTAL GUE

254
WATCHIN

New York

Experiences

Meet Our Hosts

Ideas

Using SideTour

About Us

Guidelines

FAQs

Gift Certificates

Apply to Host

Company

Background

Team

Press

Jobs

Contact

Connect

Blog

Facebook

Twitter

Video

 <img alt="" height='1' src="//googleads.g.doubleclick.net/pagead/

sidetour

viewthroughconversion/1007181501/?

value=0&label=ljLICJPXmwMQvb2h4AM&guid=ON&script=0' style='border-style:none;'

width='1'> 